

POWWOW CREEK OUTDOORS

Alaska Wing Shooting

Kodiak Island Alaska has been rated at the #3 destination for duck hunters! ...And why not with the natural abundance of one of the most sought after waterfowl species in North America—the harlequin! The distinctively marked and stately blue-gray harlequin spends most of the year in Alaska. Many harlequin winter in the mild open bays of Kodiak Island. They are usually the most predominant duck species found here, along with another trophy duck—the Barrow’s Goldeneye. A larger cousin of the Common Goldeneye, the Barrow’s Goldeneye is rarely scene east of the Rockies, but is abundant at Kodiak.
